

Dear Friend,

The most recent reports from the National Hurricane Center (NHC), the hurricane advisory body for the National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), forecast Tropical Storm Florence to become a dangerous major hurricane near the southeast U.S. coast by late next week and possibly impact large portions of Virginia. Governor Northam has already declared a state of emergency in advance of this storm and has instructed state agencies to begin making the necessary preparations in the event Florence lands on our shores. As we have witnessed in the past, these storms have the potential to damage infrastructure and severely impede emergency response capabilities.

In the event Florence turns towards Virginia, I have compiled contact information for federal, state, and local authorities to help you prepare for the worst this storm could bring. If no resources are available in your immediate area, contact the Virginia Emergency Management Agency to ask about other resources or to obtain contact information.

My office stands ready to help should you or your loved ones require assistance during this time.

Sincerely,
